

Kennedy Meets With Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy met with top foreign policy advisers Sunday and received a secret report on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's talk with the U. S. ambassador in Moscow. Kennedy also chose a number of new sub-Cabinet officials, including an undersecretary of the Navy who used to be in Kennedy's World War II PT boat squadron.

The undersecretary-to-be is Paul Fay Jr., a San Francisco businessman and a Republican. Fay stopped by at the White House briefly during a busy round of Kennedy activities.

In another action, Kennedy appointed a special three-man panel to study the problems of ethics in government and conflict of interest.

This group, headed by Calvert Magruder, former chief judge of the 1st U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, is to report its findings to Kennedy by March 15.

The new President's foreign policy session with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Undersecretary Chester Bowles was his first major White House get-together on State Department problems and strategy on how to deal with global troubles ranging from Cuba and Laos to dealing with Khrushchev.

Rusk and Bowles, plus special presidential assistant Ralph Dungan, sat in on the White House luncheon session which lasted about 2½ hours.

Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger said the meeting dealt with matters affecting organization of the State Department and policy.

He said Rusk has reported to Kennedy on what was described as "an initial report" filed by ambassador Llewellyn Thompson on Thompson's two-hour private talk Saturday with Khrushchev.

Several hours later Kennedy sent Khrushchev a message voicing readiness to cooperate with all who genuinely seek peace. The Kennedy message was in reply to a cable of congratulations from Khrushchev.

Kennedy conferred with Rusk, Bowles and Dungan after he had attended church services—his first as president—and heard a prayer for peace.

Salinger declined to say anything further about the Thompson report. Nor would he give any details on what foreign policy problems were discussed.

Moscow has been pushing for a resumption of East-West negotiations, at a standstill since the U2 incident and summit blowup last May.

On the question of State Department organization, Salinger had no announcements except to confirm that Minneapolis Tribune writer Carl T. Rowan had been offered the job of deputy assistant secretary for public affairs. He said Rowan has neither accepted nor rejected the offer yet.

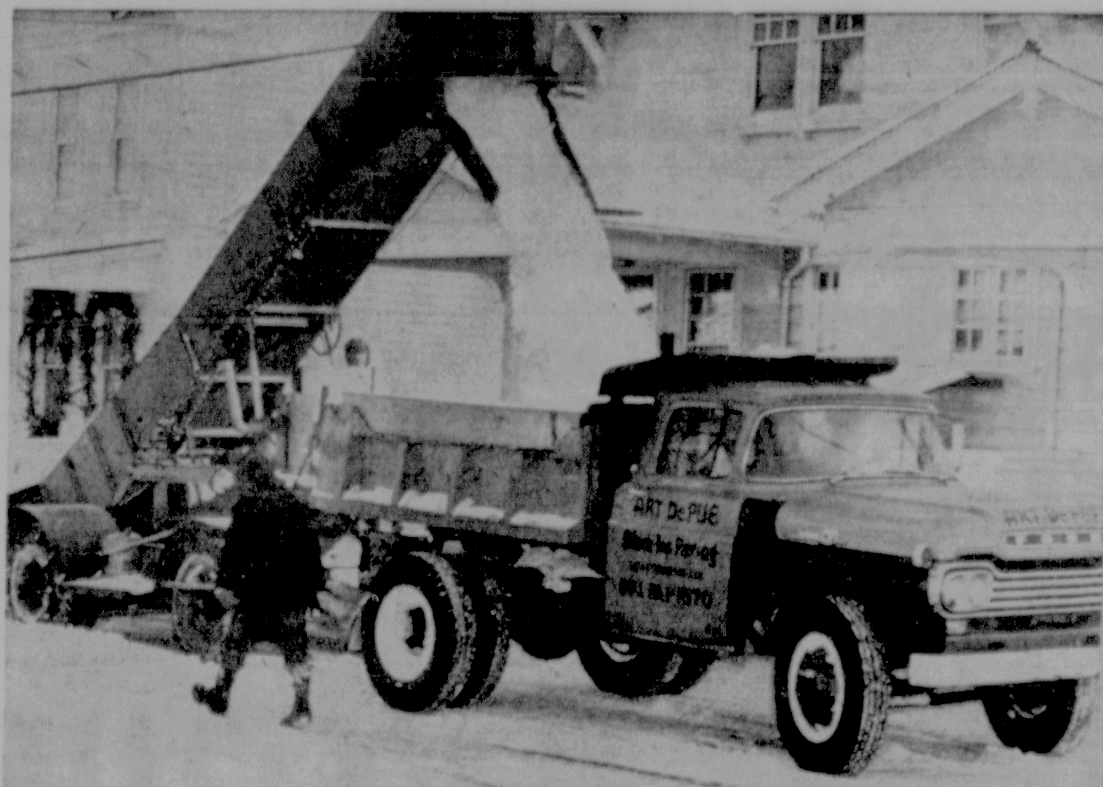

Rowan, 35, a Negro, said Saturday that he would announce Monday.

day or later whether to accept. He has been with the Tribune since 1948 and has written books and given many lectures dealing with the problems of Negroes.

Kennedy invited Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and his wife to dinner at the White House. Salinger described it as the social gathering. Another invited guest was artist

William Walton, also a New York backer of Kennedy.

According to previous announcements, Roosevelt has been offered a position in the new administration. What it might be has not been disclosed. There has been speculation he might be named assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

STROUDSBURG—Operation Snow-Removal kept men and machinery busy over weekend as they continued to clear borough's business districts. Operation saw a steady process of loading and unloading of trucks as tons upon tons of snow were removed. Job continues today after near-record snowfall hit Thursday dumping 20 inches of new accumulation on already blanketed community.

EAST STROUDSBURG—An East Stroudsburg policeman stands by as snow removal units and men clear borough streets. Operation was in effect all weekend and will continue for few more days after Thursday's blizzard. Routes were open to traffic shortly after severe storm hit but crews continue to clear sidewalk areas in order to facilitate better parking.

Season's Coldest Spell Hits Area

Official Reading In Stroudsburg Was

-25; Record Is -34

MONROE Countians shivered in the season's severest cold spell today while still digging out from the near-record snow blizzard which hit last Thursday. However, the end was not in sight. A wary weatherman had his eyes on a new storm center developing in the Southern Plains area, which might produce more snow for the Pocono territory.

Throughout the county, temperatures tumbled way below the zero mark early Saturday and yesterday and were headed toward the same area this morning. Readings yesterday ranged from an official four degrees below zero at Mount Pocono to unofficial readings of minus 30 and lower in many parts of the county and at Newfoundland. Stroudsburg had an official 25 below yesterday.

The Daily Record thermometer showed a bone-chilling 15 degrees below zero reading at 12:30 this morning. A further drop was expected before daybreak.

William Hagerty, official

U. S. Government weather observer, Stroudsburg, said late last night that the low temperature for Stroudsburg reached 17 below zero Saturday and 25 below yesterday.

Hagerty said, "This cold wave does not set a record for Monroe County. The lowest temperature for the county is 34 below."

Without going into his records at the late hour Hagerty was unable to state the year the record low was established.

The coldest area for the weekend was reported at the Greentown, Newfoundland, South Sterling locations with unofficial reading of minus 30 degrees. This was the lowest reading in 26 years. The previous low was in 1934 when the temperatures read an unofficial 32 degrees below zero.

A "warmer" point in the county was the Canadensis area with a -26 degree temperature on Saturday. The temperature rose slightly on Sunday but was still hovering around the (minus) low 20's.

Cold Fronts
The area weather is a result of cold fronts coming out of the Arctic. The second major cold wave gripped the Poconos over the weekend and spread over all the Midwest and East coast dipping down to Florida.

Temperatures reached maximum of about 15 degrees as the sun shone brightly throughout the day on Sunday.

But Operation Snow-Removal continues. Area citizens are still laboring to free their automobiles from being buried. Most of the vehicles had been engulfed for several days—since the last big snowfall on Thursday.

In the town proper, snow removal crews continue to haul tons upon tons from the business districts. The operation may take several more days to complete, barring any further new accumulations.

After being snowbound on Friday and even Saturday, motorists began to check radiators and anti-freeze in their cars. Traffic was less than normal but was slightly heavier than shortly after the blizzard hit.

Generally clear weather prevailed across the state Sunday after a night of below zero temperatures which toppled previous record lows for the date.

The severe cold—resulting from an outbreak of Arctic air from North Central Canada—spared no region but settled especially hard over northeastern counties.

The coldest overnight reading was 22 degrees below zero at Tonawanda in Bradford County. Overnight readings of a minus 12 degrees at Allentown, 3 below at Harrisburg and one above zero at Philadelphia set new records for the date in those cities.

Other overnight readings included: Pleasant Mount, 17 below; Sunbury, 15 below; Newport, 12 below; Wilkes-Barre, 10 below; Bradford, minus, 4, and Pittsburg, zero.

Warmest Area
The warmest it got anywhere Sunday was 17 degrees above zero at Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Middletown. That was the coldest for the date in Harrisburg. Elsewhere, temperatures ranged below that reading.

The weather bureau said the cold would continue through Sunday night with new record lows possible again in northeastern areas.

The temperatures put all of the state in a deep freeze after last Thursday's snow storm which dumped as much as 18 inches on Pennsylvania's capital city of Harrisburg.

The combination of cold and ice-caked roads made it rough going for pedestrians and motorists out to attend Sunday church services. Many churches and other organizations cancelled Sunday meetings because of the bad weather.

In Carbondale, a community of some 14,000 in Lackawanna County, ice-caked firemen battled 12 hours before controlling a fire which destroyed an entire side of a block in the heart of the city's business district. Torches had to be burned to keep water lines from freezing.

There was no immediate indication whether the severe cold—it was about 14 degrees below zero—had anything to do with the blaze. Most schools were scheduled to reopen Monday after the weekend. Many of them shut down completely Friday when the impact of the storm the day before was felt fully.

Record Sub-Zero Cold

Record cold hammered temperatures below zero from Virginia to the northern border Sunday, dropping the mercury to the minus 30s in New England and northern Minnesota.

Sunday morning's extremes included 34 below at Bemidji, Minn., and 33 below at Norfolk, Conn.

Gordonville, in central Virginia, reported 6 below. Freezing weather gripped the eastern half of the nation, penetrating deep into the Gulf states and Florida.

Cold skies brought little relief during the day and more sub-zero cold was expected before Monday morning.

The freeze extended over much of the Florida peninsula where Jacksonville and Orlando recorded 24 above and Vero Beach had a chill 28.

-12 In Allentown
A -25 at Hartford, Conn., shattered the record low mark of -24 set Feb. 16, 1943. Allentown, Pa., had its lowest reading of record, -12, a level 2 degrees under the Jan. 18, 1954 mark.

Record lows posted for the date were -17 at Portland, Maine; -16 at Albany, N.Y.; -6 at Providence, R. I.; 7 above at Richmond, Va., and 1 above at Philadelphia.

Other low readings included -29 at Old Town, Maine; -26 at Lebanon, N. H.; -25 at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; -23 at Rumford, Maine, and Newport, Vt., and -10 at White Plains, N. Y.

Boston's official low mark was 6 above, but readings in the minus 10-20 range were reported from inland suburbs. New York City shivered in early morning 12-degree weather.

The Upper Mississippi Valley was very cold, -24 at Duluth, -14 at Minneapolis-St. Paul and -4 at Milwaukee.

In the Southeast, Atlanta's low mark was 10 degrees above zero and Birmingham had 14. It was 4 above zero at Louisville, Ky., 17 at Memphis and 26 at New Orleans in the widespread hard freeze.

North Carolina was gripped by its coldest weather of the winter. A low of 8 above at Charlotte broke a 68-year-old record for the date. Asheville, in the mountains, recorded 3 above.

Readings in West Virginia ranged between 5 below and 10 above.

Midway Island And Texas Air Crashes Fatal To 11

Two Men Die
Houston, Tex. (AP) — A twin-engine cargo plane exploded and crashed in a rice paddy Sunday and two San Antonio, Tex., men died in the fiery crash.

The plane belonged to Logair, a division of Capitol Airways at San Antonio, and was en route to Brookley Field at Mobile, Ala. Logair holds a contract to carry freight for the Air Materiel Command.

Killed as the burning C46 plane lost a wing and dove straight to earth 20 miles west of Houston were Archie Albert Shop Jr., 40, and Benjamin Oliver Nickson, 39. Shop was believed to have been the pilot.

Wreckage was strewn over a circle about 600 feet in diameter on the rice farm of J.D. Woods, near the Brookshire community. State Highway Patrolman D.W. Duggan saw the plane crash.

"It was burning about midnight for two or three minutes and then the left wing fell off."

"There was a big explosion and it crashed."

Probers Will Quiz Injured Pilot Of Jet

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal investigators said Sunday it probably will be at least three days before they can question a check pilot who may know what caused a jet plane to crash last Thursday night.

Capt. William P. Poe, 32, of Miami, Fla., was the only flight officer aboard the DC8B Aeronaves de Mexico plane to survive the take-off crash at Idlewild Airport in a snowstorm.

He suffered critical injuries, but was reported out of danger Sunday.

The accident killed four persons—the captain, copilot, second officer and woman purser—but 102 survived.

Adlai Arrives At U.N., First Debate Due Soon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson arrived from Washington Sunday to take over the U. S. delegation to the United Nations. He may get into his first debate before the week is out.

Stevenson arrived at LaGuardia Airport earlier than announced and newsmen missed him at the airport.

Stevenson's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson Jr., of Chicago, checked into the eight-room suite in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel Towers that is reserved for the U. S. chief delegate to the United Nations. She began getting the suite ready for her father-in-law.

He will hand U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld his credentials at noon Monday. He will hold a news conference at 11 a.m. Tuesday. And he may have to show up in the Security Council Wednesday, Thursday or Friday for a new debate on the Congo.

He also must get ready for a resumed session of the General Assembly, to begin March 7 with the Congo and disarmament among the principal items.

In this rush, Stevenson, 60, has the advantage of some experience with the United Nations. He was at the U. N. organizing conference in San Francisco and the preparatory commission meetings in London in 1945, and then at the assembly sessions of 1946 and 1947.

Mail has asked that the Security Council resume Congo debate with the participation of countries that attended the Jan. 3-7 Casablanca conference—Ceylon, Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco and the United Arab Republic. Those countries want the United Nations to get deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba out of prison and put him back in power.

Comment along the same line was printed by Komsomol Pravda, the Communist youth newspaper, and Moscow Pravda, a city newspaper.

Through Tass and the Moscow radio the Soviet people learned that Kennedy had responded warmly to a message of congratulations from Premier Khrushchev and President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

It appeared certain the Russians would be happier because of Kennedy's statement that "we are ready and anxious to cooperate" with all sincere peoples.

Westerners rarely talked with Russians in the weeks before the inauguration without being told of hopes that Kennedy somehow would change the atmosphere strained by the dispute between Khrushchev and President Eisenhower.

But, Western sources say, the Eisenhower administration was dissatisfied with Hammarskjöld's stubborn support of his special representative in the Congo, Rajeshwar Dayal of India. They understand the Kennedy administration feels the same way.

Confer Monday
They decided at Casablanca to ask for a council debate. The delegations are expected to confer Monday and if they decide to press for immediate debate, the council probably will meet late this week.

Stevenson told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday the United Nations are "thoroughly anticolonialist." He said Hammarskjöld was trying to fill the vacuum of law and order in the Congo and this had brought him under unremitting attack from those who see opportunity in chaos.

So when the council meets, Stevenson can be expected to defend Hammarskjöld's sturdy support of the Congo attack, as did his Republican predecessor, James J. Wadsworth.

Express Hope For Better U.S.-Red Ties

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet newspapers expressed hope Sunday for improved U. S.-Soviet relations now that John F. Kennedy is president. Readers of Pravda were told millions of Americans want a new policy toward the Soviet Union.

"Americans are tired of the burden of shame which Eisenhower's administration put on their shoulders," the Soviet Communist party organ declared. "The nerves of Americans are overstrained by alarming reports about dangerous intrigues around Cuba, Laos and the Congo. It is quite natural that these hopes (for improved relations) are connected with the new President."

Pravda said "it was possible to read these hopes in the eyes of the citizens" who attended the inauguration in Washington Friday.

But it may be difficult to have an immediate change, it said, adding: "Eisenhower has left the White House, but left behind ghosts and spirits which have a real force and influence on United States foreign policy."

Comment along the same line was printed by Komsomol Pravda, the Communist youth newspaper, and Moscow Pravda, a city newspaper.

New Arrest Is Made In Bank Steal

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP)—Harold Eugene Kistner Jr., 35-year-old free-spending corporation president, was held on $25,000 bond Sunday on charges of abetting a $2 million embezzlement.

Kistner, ousted president of the Northern Biochemical Corp., whose principal stockholder has admitted the bank embezzlement, was arrested Saturday night by federal agents as his Sheldon home.

He waived formal arraignment before U. S. Commissioner W. M. Forker. A preliminary hearing was set for 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Kistner was taken to the Woodbury County jail here, where Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, has been held since last Monday night when she admitted the embezzlement.

She has refused to post $10,000 bond to gain her release.

Mrs. Geiger was assistant cashier and a member of the board of the Sheldon National Bank. Her father, W. P. Iverson, 83, was bank president.

U. S. Dist. Atty. F. E. Van Alstine said Kistner was charged with aiding and abetting Mrs. Geiger in draining sizable sums from the bank.

Authorities said Kistner is accused of "having drawn checks on the bank when he didn't have the needed money on deposit."

Mrs. Geiger apparently accepted the checks but did not charge the amounts to Northern Biochemical's accounts.

Red China Food Shortage Forces New Policies

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China, seeking to compensate for heavy setbacks in agriculture blamed on natural calamities, has laid down a tougher domestic policy.

Top leaders, headed by Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung met in Peking Jan. 14-18 and decided to:

1. Concentrate on strengthening the agricultural front.

2. Strengthen the peasant communes.

3. Intensify what is described as a rectification movement against "extremely bad elements" who are "sabotaging" efforts by the Red regime. That could mean a purge.

The outline was contained in a communique, broadcast by Radio Peking, which reaffirmed Red China's alliance with the Soviet Union and, as usual, denounced the United States.

The shakeup to recoup farm losses parallels similar efforts in the Soviet Union, which also had an unsatisfactory harvest in 1960.

Further Struggles
Peking pledged further struggles against the West, saying:

"The Socialist—Communist movements are sure to win ever greater victories over the imperialists led by the United States, the chief imperialist country of our time."

The communique also said Red China supported Soviet Premier Khrushchev's coexistence policy, although before the Communist summit conference in Moscow last November it had steadfastly contended that war was inevitable.

The communique was issued following a plenary session of the Chinese Communist party's Central Committee, presided over by Mao.

More than 90 per cent of the Chinese people support the line and policies of the party and the government, the communique said but there is an "extremely small number of landlord and bourgeois elements who have not yet been sufficiently remoulded and are always attempting a comeback."

It asserted this group has "taken advantage of the difficulties brought about by natural calamities and some shortcomings in the work at the lower levels to carry out sabotaging activities."

Pocono Shriners Hosts To Irem Temple Potentate

THE Pocono Shrine Club entertained their new potentate, Thomas E. Lehman III, of Irem Temple, at a ladies night dinner-dance Saturday night at Mt. Airy Lodge, Mount Pocono.

The invocation by James A. Gavin and the singing of one verse of America was followed by the welcome address of outgoing President Ralph Barnes. He then introduced Potentate Lehman, who was elected last week to head Irem Temple, one of the largest in membership in North America. This was his first official visit among the 11 Shrine Clubs that come under his jurisdiction.

He will operate from the Oasis in Wilkes-Barre and the Irem Country Club in Dallas. Lehman is responsible for the management of both these operations, the Shrine Clubs and the temple's part in the "world's greatest philanthropy," the Shriners' 17 crippled children's hospitals located in North America, Mexico and Hawaii.

The principal temple activities announced by Lehman for 1961 included membership, Free Masonry relations, community responsibilities and the Shrine Hospitals. He said the nobles should be proud that they have a part in ministering daily to the needs of those less fortunate through these 17 temples of mercy where thousands of children receive the best medical and hospital care at no cost to them.

Lehman also announced some of the fun and social activities for the nobility to be arranged at the Temple Theatre and Country Club during 1961.

Hopkin Rollins, high priest and prophet of Irem, spoke briefly on the benefits of membership in this Masonic fraternity.

Robert J. Arner of Brodheads-ville, chairman of entertainment, introduced Harold Everett, Floyd DeHaven, John R. Eiler and Carl Dennis, all members of his committee.

President Harold Everett, First Vice President Donald Cleveland, Second Vice President Floyd DeHaven, Secretary William Sunday and Treasurer John Dunkelberger were unanimously elected as the club's 1961 officers. Past President Clarence Dupee was chairman of the nominating committee. A floor show presented by

Income Tax Facts No. 4

Medical Deductions

(This is one in a series of articles on federal income tax filing. These articles are based on information provided by the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service.)

Cost of medical care today often makes up a large portion of the average family's expenditures. To give some relief for these costs incurred by the taxpayer and his family, the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code allow a deduction for medical expenditures in arriving at the taxpayer's taxable income for the year. This deduction is allowable only to taxpayers who itemize their deductions on forms 1040 or 1040A. The standard deduction, which is taken in lieu of contributions, interest, taxes, medical expenses, etc. is automatic where the taxpayer uses form 1040A.

Medical expenses, not reimbursed by Blue Cross or other health insurance, in excess of 3 per cent of adjusted gross income for the year are deductible. However, there are certain limitations. The deduction is limited to $2,500 for each personal exemption claimed, with an overall limit of $5,000 on a separate return. For those filing a joint return or for those filing as head of household, the deduction limit is $10,000.

Taxpayers over 65 years old are also allowed certain additional benefits in computing their allowable medical deduction for the year. These benefits are:

(1) The 3 per cent limitation does not apply to medical expenditures.

(2) If taxpayer or his wife is disabled, the deductible limit is increased to $15,000. If both taxpayer and spouse are disabled, then the deductible limit is $30,000.

During the past year, Congress granted taxpayers an additional tax benefit by eliminating the 3 per cent limitation as to medical expenses paid in connection with the care of his dependent-parent, if age 65 or older. Examples of some medical expenses which are allowable are:

Doctor bills (includes annual physical examination). Hospital bills (includes X-rays and other special services). Ambulance hire, transportation costs to doctor's office, nursing services, eye examination (includes cost of glasses), dental bills (includes cost of artificial teeth), insurance premiums on health and accident policies, cost of hearing aid, wheel chair, crutches, artificial limbs or seeing-eye dog, cost of special school for a mentally or physically handicapped individual, drugs and medicines in excess of 1 per cent of adjusted gross income (this 1 per cent rule applies to all taxpayers regardless of age).

Drugs include prescriptions ordered by your doctor as well as any other medicine purchased from your drug store — such as cold remedies and other patent medicines. However, tooth paste, shaving cream, cosmetics and similar items sold by drug stores are not considered as drugs and therefore are not deductible.

Health Insurance

Most taxpayers today carry some type of hospitalization or health insurance which covers all or part of the cost of doctors and hospital expenses incurred by the taxpayer and his family. Some taxpayers have been confused as to the taxability of payments received from these plans or as to the deductibility of premiums paid on these policies.

An example of how these items would be handled is as follows:

Taxpayer was hospitalized during 1960 and incurred hospital and doctor bills of $600. He was reimbursed to the extent of $500 by his hospital insurance company. Taxpayer also paid a $10 hospital insurance premium during the year. To compute the taxpayer's medical expense, subtract the amount he was reimbursed — $500 — from the amount he paid — $700 — ($600 plus $100) and claim the difference — $200 — as a medical deduction to the extent it exceeds 3 per cent of adjusted gross income. If you paid the $700 in 1960 and received the $500 reimbursement in 1961, the only portion of the $500 which would be taxable as income in 1961 would be the portion of the $700 which resulted in a tax benefit in 1960.

Travel Expense

As noted above, transportation costs of going to and from the doctor's office qualify as medical expense. In recent court cases, the courts have also held that travel expenses of a trip to a resort such as Bermuda, Florida or Arizona ordered by your doctor to alleviate your illness (but not expenses of meals and lodging) were deductible as medical expenses.

Sick Benefits

Sick benefits are not considered as taxable income. Examples of some of these benefits that you may receive from your employer or his insurance company are:

(1) Payments for medical expense.

(2) Payment for permanent injury (not based on time absent from work).

(3) Damages for injury or sickness.

(4) Payments under Workmen's Compensation Act.

(5) Payments up to $100 per week for loss of wages while you are absent due to injury or sickness, except that the first week's pay is taxable unless you are hospitalized for sickness for at least one day.

Kennedy Agrees To Telecasts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced Sunday it will allow live television of all President Kennedy's news conferences.

Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger, in stating this policy, said all Kennedy meetings with the press will be held in the big new State Department auditorium, some six blocks from the White House.

Kennedy plans to alternate morning and afternoon news sessions. Morning meetings will be at 10 o'clock and the afternoon sessions at 4.

The new President's first news conference is set for next Wednesday at 6 p.m.

In New York, all three major TV networks said they planned live coverage of the President's first news conference. They said they had not had time to determine whether all would be covered live, however.

Eisenhower met with newsmen in the Indian Affairs Treaty Room in the Executive Office Building, across from the White House.

Salinger said the news conference site is being changed to facilitate live television coverage and to accommodate more newsmen. Some 400 reporters can be seated in the new State Department auditorium, with prospects more can be accommodated if necessary.

At Kennedy news conferences newsmen will not have to identify themselves and the organizations they represent, as they did for Eisenhower.

This has been decided upon, Salinger said, to "facilitate the flow of news and even produce better questions."

Kennedy will announce each Monday whether he plans a news conference that week.

Gap Fire Siren To Sound Daily

DURING the cold weather the fire siren in Delaware Water Gap will be sounded daily at noon, Fire Chief James Anthony said last night.

The test is to insure the operation of the siren and keep it from freezing.

YMCA Campaign Opens Tonight

THE annual membership campaign of the Monroe County YMCA opens tonight with a Dutch treat dinner for workers at the Y starting at 6 p.m.

Wife's Car Skids Into Husband's

TITUSVILLE, Pa. (AP)—A man and his wife, driving in different cars, crashed head-on Sunday in front of their home in Titusville R.D. 1.

Both Emerson T. Campbell and his wife Marjorie came out of the freak accident unhurt.

State police said Mrs. Campbell's car skidded on an icy patch of Terrace Farm Road and swerved into the path of her husband's oncoming auto.

Weekend Accidents Claim Lives Of Five In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weather had a hand in two of the five accidental deaths in Pennsylvania over the weekend. Three of the victims died on the highways.

Army Capt. Robert B. Flowers, 46, of Easton, was killed Saturday when his car skidded on an icy road near Clayville, Washington County. The car collided with a tractor-trailer.

The same day, Otto Pitschman, 66, of Whitehall, was trying to loosen coal frozen in a piece of mining equipment at Pleasant Hills, a community near Pittsburgh.

He lost his footing and tumbled down a chute. Twenty-tons of coal poured down on him, crushing him to death.

The other victims:

Reading—Frank J. Celebucki Jr., 33, of Reading, found by his mother Saturday night hanging by his neck from a closet door. A belt was looped over a corner of a door and around his neck. His parents told police that he apparently was trying to imitate or act out something he had seen on television. They said that Frank, their only child, often tried to imitate scenes from television.

Mount Pleasant—Harry G. Miller, 69, hit by a car Saturday night near his home in that Westmoreland County community.

Brockport—Mrs. Emma Sidekinger, 67, walked into the path of a car Saturday night on Route 219 near her home in that Elk County community.

Young Couple's Deaths Probed

RICHMOND, Mich. (AP)—State police ordered tests Sunday to determine exactly how two teenagers carried out their apparent plan to die together rather than live apart.

Linda Louise Mabley, 15, and her boy friend, James Charles Erhart, 16, both of Richmond, died of bullet wounds in the chest in the girl's home in this southeastern Michigan community Saturday night.

What police are trying to learn is whether it was a murder-suicide or a double suicide. Detective Laurence N. Hoffman said powder-burn tests would be made in an effort to answer this question.

Robert Singer Heads Firemen

SHAWNEE — Robert Singer was elected president of the Shawnee Fire Co. at its recent meeting. Singer succeeds Standard Close who has served as president for two terms.

The fire company will be host at the Monroe County Firemen's Assn. meeting Thursday, Feb. 9.

Snow Falls From Roof; Woman Hurt

MRS. LILLIAN Berryman, 83, of 39 Garden St., Stroudsburg, is in the Monroe County General Hospital in a "guarded condition" after being buried by snow that witnesses said fell from the roof of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church Saturday at 3 p.m.

She was walking from Main St. to the parking lot in back of the church with several friends when the snow fell and completely covered her.

"Had it not been for the friends she was walking with at the time of the accident she might be lying under the snow today," Edward Rahn said last night.

Rahn and several women dug the woman from the snow pile, placed her on a blanket and carried her into the Singer Sewing Machine store to await the ambulance from Monroe County General Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Berryman was suffering from a head injury.

Lions Clubs Of District Are Praised

MORE THAN 150 Lions gathered at Johnnie's Inn, Pocono Summit Wednesday night and observed "Lions' Top of the Poconos Rally." The clubs represented were Pocono Summit, the host club, Stroudsburg, Milford, Tannersville, Tobyhanna, Barrett and Bangor.

Zone Chairman John Regan of Stroudsburg presided. Dr. Paul R. Maxwell, Stroudsburg, president was song leader, assisted by Tom Baroni of Bangor, Robert Hay of Stroudsburg and Don Docherty of Barrett.

John DeSanto, who was one of the group that organized the Pocono club 12 years ago, was given a vote of commendation for his years of service in Lionism.

Deputy District Governor R. Tucker praised the Lions of the zone for their activity and energy in the promotion of Lionism. He urged active co-operation of the zone in the coming regional rally, state and international conventions.

The speaker was Col. Lester Kale, commander at the Tobyhanna Signal Depot, who gave his hearers many little known facts about that installation.

He said that the depot is an outstanding industrial enterprise being operated by 2,000 civilian employees and 600 soldiers, and it is also an important educational unit with diversified instruction provided for a great many students.

Basically the school helps the men to do a better job and to prepare themselves for promotions. The keynote is "on the job training, learning by doing."

However the benefits of the school section at the depot are not confined to practical contacts but include seminar discussions and formal classroom lectures, while general high school tests are given to the soldiers.

College level tests recently were given to 34 enlisted men and officers, Kale said.

The Eisenhower's, who drove to their farm home near here Friday following the inaugural ceremonies, were given a big "welcome home" party Saturday night.

39 Plant Loans Okayed In Year

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority approved 39 loans totaling $3,938,844 in 1960 to help finance new plants or plant additions, William R. Davlin, PIDA board chairman and state commerce secretary, said Sunday.

The loans were used on projects worth $13,215,171. The other financing was supplied by banks, insurance companies and community non-profit organizations, Davlin said, adding:

"When in full normal operations the industrial projects launched with PIDA assistance during 1960 are scheduled to provide 5,869 new factory jobs and new annual payrolls of $22,776,000."

Belgium Quiet First In Month

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgium has spent its first quiet weekend since Dec. 20, when Socialist-led unions called their strike against the government's austerity program.

Life was back to normal Sunday. Trains ran on schedule, theaters were open, cafes were packed and all soccer games were played on schedule.

The last Socialist unions still on strike Saturday ordered their members—mainly metal workers of Liege, Charleroi, and La Louviere—to resume work Monday.

Two Cars Damaged In Sunday Crash

EAST Stroudsburg police investigated a two-car accident yesterday at 11:30 a.m. on S. Courtland St., near the CLU Club. Police reported no injuries.

The drivers were identified by police as James Price Jr., 40, of 183 Lenox Ave., East Stroudsburg, and John Counterman, 22, of 58 Smith St., East Stroudsburg. A third person whose car was not involved in the accident was identified as Ronald T. Morton, 1010 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

The Price vehicle was parked on the north side of the street and Counterman was traveling east when Morton opened the door of his car to get out, said Patrolman Richard Lesh, investigator of the accident.

In an attempt to miss Morton, as he stepped out of the car, Counterman swerved his car to the left hitting the parked car of Price, Lesh added.

Damage was estimated by Patrolman Lesh at $125 to the Price car and $150 to the Counterman vehicle.

Snow Covers Feeding Spots

Sportsmen To Place Food For Deer

BARRETT — A group of local sportsmen — in their endeavor to care for the deer herd during this critical feeding period — have arranged a deer-feeding program which will get under way this week.

In a demonstration of what man can do for beast during such drastic times, the sportsmen have obtained 200 bales of second and third growth of clover and alfalfa for distribution to herd feeding locations.

The emergency program was set up after near-record snowfalls completely covered the ground and possible feeding spots for deer. The heavy snows have made food very scarce for the animals, and as a result, a fight for survival exists.

The food will be stockpiled at the Sport Shop, Mountain-home and across from Dann's Food Market, Barrett. Persons knowing the usual haunts of deer or where they usually feed are urged to contact any of these sportsmen heading the program.

They are: George Scherer, Frank Meinweiser, Russ Dann, Jim Manhart, Roy Britton, Ernie LaBar and John Valence. Dann is acting treasurer for the group while arrangements are being completed to finance the purchase of the foodstuff.

One method to raise funds will be distributing cannisters in business establishments on Wednesday. The group will also welcome contributions in order that the stock can be paid for and new stockpiles acquired.

The deer are a big tourist attraction in the area as well as a favorite quarry for sportsmen during hunting season.

Interested persons who know where deer herds feed can get food supplies by contacting any of the men mentioned above. Or they may phone John Valence whose number is LY 5-7391.

More Smile Contestants Examined

FIVE dentists from Monroe County examined another group of contestants for the smile contest now being conducted throughout the schools of Monroe County.

"Due to the snow storm there are several children left to be examined," Dr. Sidney Cohen said last night.

The final six children will be selected Saturday and will be sent to the semi-final contest in Scranton Feb. 4.

The finals will be held in Scranton Feb. 11 with prominent dentists from different locations in the State being the judges," said Dr. Cohen.

The winner will be sent to Disneyland, Calif., accompanied by a parent. The trip will be an all expense paid visit for two.

The following are still in the running of the Fourth through Eighth Grades. They are Linda Argot, Lloyd Argot, Bob Pankin, Jane Kirk, Gail Heller, Sandra Searfoss, Sandra Wasser, John Farmer, Arthur Rosenthal, Lamont Wollyung, Barbara Yocum, Andrea Colovos, Harriet Horn, Kitty Schafer and William Lockland.

In addition to Dr. Cohen the examinations have been made by Doctors Robert Arner, Walter Fitzsimmons, Edmund Magann, Elton Denning and Richard Krueger.

Doctor Slain By Husband Of Woman He Was Treating

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A doctor called to treat a woman with a headache was shot and killed Sunday by the woman's husband who then committed suicide, the police reported.

Dr. Roy Smith, 53, of Norristown, had come to the trailer home of Alexander Niblock, 68, a retired restaurant owner, because the doctor was called to treat a woman with a headache.

The Niblocks were married last Dec. 11.

Mrs. Niblock told police her husband greeted Dr. Smith at the door, but as the doctor reached the entrance to her bedroom a shot rang out.

The doctor was hit in the head. Mrs. Niblock said her husband then laid down on the living room floor and shot himself in the head with a pistol. She fled to a neighbor's home.

Charles G. Moody, chief of Montgomery County detectives, said the couple's neighbors told him Niblock had been brooding over what he thought were harmful injections given to him by the doctor.

Moody did not say why Dr. Smith, a specialist in internal medicine, had been treating Niblock. He had owned a restaurant in Ambler.

The Niblocks' marriage last month was the first for her and the second for him. He had been a widower for six years. The newlyweds lived in nearby Lower Providence Township.

One fireman suffered a head injury when struck by a blast of water from a high-pressure hose. He was reported in fair condition at a hospital. Several other fire fighters were overcome by smoke. They were treated at the scene and returned to duty.

Fire officials said the fire was believed to have started in an apartment on the third floor. The cause was not determined and no estimate of the damage was available immediately.

The top floor of the building contained 12 apartments, half of which were occupied. The second floor housed the headquarters of the Chautauqua Institute, a cultural organization that stages annual summer programs of concerts, religious panels, operas, discussion groups and theatrical productions.

The ground floor of the Colonnade, rebuilt in 1908 after a fire, housed several business establishments.

Memory is a priceless possession. Preserve it permanently—visibly—beautifully in stone.

STOVE BLAST SETS FIRE TO REFRIGERATOR

DELAWARE Water Gap firemen were called to the home of Anton Redzig, Main St., Delaware Water Gap, yesterday at 9:30 a.m. as a result of a gas stove explosion. Firemen reported no injuries.

The oven of the stove exploded igniting the refrigerator that stood next to the stove.

"Through the quick thinking of Robert Redzig, a resident of the house, a serious fire was averted. Redzig pushed the burning refrigerator out of the kitchen onto the porch," Fire Chief James Anthony said last night.

The only damage from the fire was to the refrigerator and the services of the firemen were not required as the fire was out when they arrived.

Fire Levels Headquarters Of Chautauqua; Woman Dies

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y. (AP)—One woman was believed to have perished Sunday in a fire that raged unchecked for 10 hours in the 59-year-old headquarters of the famed Chautauqua Institute.

Five other persons fled unhurt.

The building was a total loss, firemen said.

The fire fighters said a woman, tentatively identified as Mrs. Adda Wright, about 72, a resident of the third floor, was believed to have died in the fire.

Mrs. Wright, a clerk in a hotel here, had been seen attempting to fight a section of the fire in the west end of the building with a hand extinguisher.

More than 300 firemen from 46 volunteer departments in the county responded to the mutual aid call. They pumped water from nearby Chautauqua Lake because of a shortage in the community supply.

One fireman suffered a head injury when struck by a blast of water from a high-pressure hose. He was reported in fair condition at a hospital. Several other fire fighters were overcome by smoke. They were treated at the scene and returned to duty.

Polish Ship Is Boarded At Sea

MOSCOW (AP)—A Polish ship was stopped in the Mediterranean and searched by a boarding party of French sailors, Tass said Sunday in a dispatch.

The Soviet news agency did not say when the alleged search took place but asserted the Polish government filed "a resolute protest."

The French navy is blockading Algeria to prevent smuggled arms from reaching nationalist rebels.

Doing For Ourselves

Pennsylvania shares with New Jersey, New York and California the dubious distinction of being short-changed on all federal-aid legislation.

Rated as a "wealthy state," we get back less than half of the dollars we send off to Washington for the giveaway programs which have grown so popular in Congress.

And why are they popular? We think it is because of political cowardice at state and local levels.

Governors and even mayors, both Democrats and Republicans, want funds for building schools, constructing highways, expanding hospitals, etc., but they do not want to impose the taxes which would be necessary to acquire these improvements. They shift that responsibility to the far-off federal government at Washington.

From a selfish political standpoint, it is far easier to permit the federal government to undertake the harsh task of collecting these required taxes. Then, in campaign time, depending upon the local official's political affiliation, he can hold the party in power in Washington answerable for adding to the burden of the taxpayers.

But so far as Pennsylvania is concerned, we would have a lighter tax load if we did these things for ourselves rather than have Uncle Sam disburse our money here and to so-called "poverty-stricken states."

'Sometimes I Hate That 22nd Amendment!'

The Pennsylvania Story

Test Of Strategy

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — First test of the Democratic Lawrence Administration's "rush-must" strategy is scheduled to break on the legislative front this week.

Suffice it to say that Republican anti-administration lawmakers — who are in the minority this year — take a dim view of the whole thing, but depending upon developing circumstances are virtually powerless to do anything about it.

Core of this "rush-must" strategy is the administration's insistence that the fiscal program laid out by the Governor in his budget message last week for fiscal 1961 be approved and on his desk by March 1 "to be effective."

This of course refers to the $0 per cent prepayment proposal of the administration — that is, acceleration of payments — covering business taxes such as the corporate net income tax, the tax on bank shares, the utilities gross receipts taxes and the tax on foreign life insurance companies.

Reason for the speed and the "rush-must" tag on the fiscal legislation, say hopped-up administration aides, is the fact that for business firms to gain credit on the prepayment in their 1961 taxes, the returns must be in April 15 — and secondly, as Dr. David Kurtzman, secretary of administration put it: "April 15 is the date — but they ought to have a little notice."

What is behind the step-up or prepayment of the business taxes — strictly a one-shot affair which cannot be repeated? In the words of the Governor: "The increased yield in revenue to the Commonwealth will be $82,000,000 — an amount which approximates the remaining deficit which must otherwise be carried over and discharged in the new budget period."

Will the "rush-must" strategy work this session? It was tried previously by Democratic Governor Leader both during the 1955 and 1957 legislative sessions — but the rush tag label fell on deaf legislative ears insofar as anti-administration Republican legislative blocs were concerned.

And in those days GOP forces held the upper hand on the legislative front.

This year the story is somewhat different. The House of Representatives is in Democratic administration hands — with three more than the necessary 106 seats.

In the Senate of course the seats are tied evenly 25-25 which could indeed provide a thorny — and ultimately perhaps, insurmountable — problem for administration forces.

Unquestionably the rush-must tag has been applied by the administration to "suitable" legislation — that is, legislation that lawmakers on both sides of the aisle feel isn't too poisonous and does not actually represent anything approaching "new" tax measures.

The bills are scheduled — barring any unforeseen eventualities — to come before the House for final vote this week. There could hardly be any better type of legislation on which to "test" the "rush-must" strategy. If it doesn't work on this type of legislation — it's chances of falling by the wayside in the future on tougher grist are pretty much assured.

It is significant to note perhaps that Republican lawmakers never have been known as ones to rush into anything. Deliberation and study seem to be two stand-out bywords in GOP circles.

While administration Democrats on a paper could have the strength within their own legislative bloc in the House to pass the legislation — four defects or four absences because of illness, etc., could send the whole plan on the rocks insofar as the administration is concerned, unless some unlikely-at-the-moment help is forthcoming from the minority-bound GOP bloc.

Aside from the fiscal aspects of the legislation, the side-play strategy will be worth watching this week.

Congressional Quiz

Regulatory Agencies Analyzed

By Congressional Quarterly

President John F. Kennedy Dec. 26 made public a comprehensive report on seven of the federal regulatory agencies. The study, prepared at the President's request by James M. Landis, contained strong criticisms of the commissions and proposed broad changes. (It probably will be a guide to reorganization in the Kennedy Administration. This quiz, which calls for three correct answers, tests your knowledge of some basic facts about those agencies which regulate some form of private activity.

Q—Recent plane crashes have focused attention on the rulemaking and enforcement functions of two of the regulatory agencies — the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board. Can you name four of the eight remaining commissions?

A—(a) The eight agencies: Federal Communications Commission, Federal Maritime Board, Federal Power Commission, Federal Reserve Board, Federal Trade Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission, National Labor Relations Board, and Securities and Exchange Commission.

Q—The first regulatory commission was created in (a) 1887; (b) 1914; (c) 1935.

A—(a). The Interstate Commerce Commission was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Act of 1887.

Q—True or false: Each regulatory agency is part of a federal bureau headed by a cabinet officer.

A—False. Each agency is independent. They are often referred to collectively as the "headless fourth branch of government."

Q—The powers and functions of regulatory commissions are determined by (a) Congress; (b) the President; (c) the Supreme Court.

A—(a). The functions of the agencies are set forth by Congress in the laws bringing them into existence. However, their members are appointed by the President subject to confirmation by the Senate, and the Supreme Court may review their proceedings and orders if challenged.

Q—One of the major recommendations of the Landis report was a proposal to create an Office for the Oversight of Regulatory Agencies within the White House. Which of the Executive Offices currently oversees the affairs of the regulatory agencies?

A—The Bureau of the Budget has authority over the regulatory agencies. The Landis Report said this authority was at too low a level and too narrow in scope.

Veteran's Guide

Q—Are the doctors and nurses at VA hospitals members of the different branches of military services?

A—No. The VA's doctors and nurses are civilians. Of course, they may belong to reserve units or even attend organized drills or training periods. But they are civilians in their capacities as VA employees.

The Allen-Scott Report

Battle For Control

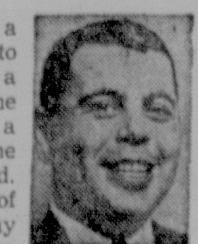

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — President Kennedy's high-priority, multi-million dollar program for depressed areas is running into an old Washington stumbling block — wrangling over who is to run it.

Inside You And Yours

Yo-Yo Therapy

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.
He Might have been your son! At eleven years he was officially listed an incurable criminal. He was a headache to his parents. A nuisance to the police and a menace to the neighborhood. His Court of Last Resort lay in six hours with a yo-yo.

A California doctor recently reported thirteen such stories. He failed to cure a fourteenth case — a narcotics addict too hooked to change.

The doctor refused to read any of the past records before treatment. He didn't want to be prejudiced. He spent the first session making friends with the youngster.

Can't Crack Shell
Delinquency cures often fail at this stage because doctors can't break through that tough outer shell—an emotional plaster cast to protect broken feelings. How can anyone help a youngster who refuses—"Nothing doing, Big Daddy!" or "Let's skip this head-shrinker stuff!" Easy! You keep the problem child interested and curious. He learns about hypnosis and the hypnotic trance. And then he finds a yo-yo telling his fortune—accurately.

Four Directions
He rests his elbow on the

be turned over to him.

But influential staff assistants of the President are vigorously insisting that a new and independent agency be set up expressly to administer this far-flung economic program.

Heading this potent inner group is Myer Feldman, deputy special counsel to the President and one of his oldest and most trusted aides.

Supporting them is Sen. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), who directed the special task force that strongly recommended large-scale federal assistance for depressed areas. He was one of the leaders who put such legislation through the Senate last year, but it got nowhere as the House Rules committee bottled it up.

How ever, another top advocate of this program is disagreeing with both sides. Sen. Joseph Clark (D., Pa.) wants it to be under either the Labor Department or the Independent Housing and Home Finance Agency. He contends the latter is especially experienced in dealing with community problems.

This backstage jurisdictional dispute is so serious that it is slated to be taken up at the new President's first Cabinet meeting this week.

An immediate decision is urgent for two reasons:

(1) To inform the Senate Banking Committee, which is now working on this legislation, what Kennedy wants done about the control issue, and (2) to strengthen his position in finding a director for the program.

Several possibilities sounded out on that stated they first wanted to know the administrative set-up.

One made it clear he was not interested if the agency isn't independent.

Former Gov. George Leader (D., Pa.) is an eager aspirant for this job on any basis. But he still hasn't the approval of the party leaders of his state, some of whom are not overly enthusiastic about him.

Pro and con — Secretary Hodges is arguing the $300 million depressed areas program should be run by the Commerce Department because it already has the machinery for that.

Also, he proposes to name a new assistant secretary to direct it.

The Douglas-Feldman group challenge the Commerce Department's claimed "machinery." They hold the department is primarily concerned with business and not recovery measures. Further, they assert a new and independent agency would "dramatize" this extensive economic undertaking that involves both federal loans and grants.

On the pressing need for such a program, President Kennedy has before him a special report by his new Council of Economic Advisers, headed by Dr. Walter Heller, former economics professor of Minnesota University. The study stresses three points: "All signs point to unemployment (now around 4.5 million) getting worse before it gets better."

"If the unemployment rate soars to 7.5 per cent (it exceeded 6 per cent in December), then the President should immediately ask Congress for an emergency tax cut as a vigorous business stimulant."

"While the business recession is mild in general, it is strongly advisable to take prompt measures to bolster the economy and send it upward again. For that purpose, a $3 to $5 billion increase in defense and public works spending is recommended."

Physical fitness — Setting up exercises in the morning and walking two to five miles daily are the most popular forms of keeping fit in Congress. . . . Sen. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), despite severe World War II injuries to his left hand, does brisk setting up exercises after arising, and walks part-way to his Capitol office.

Sen. Maureen Neuberger (D., Ore.) walks to and from her office, a distance of around two miles each way. . . . Sen. William Proxmire (D., Wis.) does 200 push-ups every morning, and walks at least four miles daily regardless of the weather. He also eats wheat germ and honey. . . . House Democratic Leader John McCormack, Mass., keeps lean and fit by rigorously watching his diet.

Airy Advice

President Kennedy's "task force" technique has served its political purpose—keeping the incoming Administration in the news. But we wonder whether President Kennedy will find his task force reports very useful in the future.

From the first to the latest—dealing with conservation of natural resources—these reports seem more like hastily contrived shopping lists for Federal spending than sober, deliberate "studies." Lacking in each of them is a sense of priority. The Kennedy Administration has been exhorted to turn its attention everywhere at once, and to apply the "solution" of Federal spending, willy nilly, to every problem, real or presumed.

These reports, because they generally skim the surface of their subjects, have a tendency to overlap. Thus, a study group on distressed areas rambles into formulas for U.S. economic growth and a demand for Federal aid to education. A task force on housing dashes off to rescue the family farm. And the most recent report, as if to top its predecessors, sets out to talk about natural resources and lets drop by the wayside a philosophy for the Budget Bureau, a program for distressed areas, a proposal for "a national energy and fuels policy" (including Federal monopoly of atomic power) and the suggestion of a C.C.C. to employ and uplift "several hundreds of thousands of idle young men."

Obviously, a study which spends so much time disgressing may be forced to deal superficially with its main concern. This one urges renewed Government reclamation of arid and marginal land on which new farmers may be settled. The farm problem, we had supposed, was too many uneconomic farmers on too much land, part of which has been locked in the Government soil bank. Does it make sense for the Government to retire farm land with one hand and reclaim it with the other?

That, and many other unanswered questions, await Mr. Kennedy in his task force reports. They have passed on much airy advice and many off-the-cuff prescriptions. They have, by and large, shifted the responsibility for hard choice to him.

In a sense, no President ever can escape this responsibility. But the mountain of unconsidered advice dumped on Mr. Kennedy by his advisers, ironically, may increase his burden.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Tough Days

Every day I get a letter from some person who lives in 1930 or thereabouts and refuses to face the very simple and unpleasant fact of 1961. Such persons remind me of those brilliant minds in Wall Street in 1929 who, believing that the sky is the limit, committed suicide when the sky fell down on them.

The first problem that President Kennedy and this nation face is the dollar and our loss of gold. This is more important than any other question because as our dollar loses in value, everything we do or try to do goes awry.

For instance, the cost of defense rises as the value of the dollar goes down and the cost of keeping troops and bases goes up beyond our capacity to find the funds, particularly if our so-called allies continue to build their gold reserves at our expense.

Only the British have recognized the seriousness of this problem and have come through it with devotion and purpose. Italy, West Germany and Japan have been pounding our gold reserve greedily. It is questionable as to whether what they have done will ultimately redound to their benefit.

The Kennedy Administration faces the dollar as the most urgent problem, although it is understandable that Congress will not consider it so because Americans have had no experience with inadequate currency since the War Between the States and therefore cannot get away from the simplicity that a dollar is 100 cents, 20 nickels or 10 dimes. But even on that formula, what is a nickel worth?

In this respect the Kennedy Administration starts where the Hoover Administration started. Hoover took office on March 4, 1929; the stock market collapse occurred in October, 1929. Actually, such a debacle took a long time in the making.

The world-wide financial difficulties of that era were first apparent in 1921 and the first country to be hit was Japan. The chain of economic disturbances moved from country to country with dramatic impetus and finally hit the United States.

The London Economic Conference was called in 1933 to deal with the question of money and gold and to set, if possible, a universal price for gold.

Roosevelt and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., torpedoed the Conference and that was the end of economic sanity for Europe.

Today, President Kennedy is faced by a similar situation. He walked in on an inflation, which is sharp and moving rapidly. His Secretary of the Treasury, Douglas Dillon, must stick his finger in the dike to keep our gold from continuing to flow out of the country.

He will have to take unpleasant measures to keep our gold reserves sufficient to cover our dollar, to keep the value of our dollar up in the world, and to keep our people at work so that the social and financial problems of unemployment do not complicate the American economy at the beginning of a new Administration.

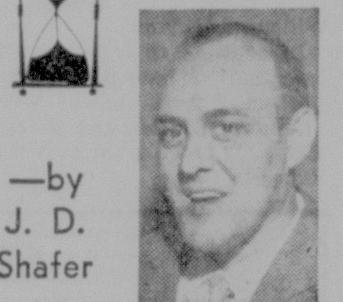

Many who regard themselves as conservatives do not recognize the seriousness of this particular problem. They keep harping on issues which are not urgent and ignore the frightening possibility that the capitalist system could collapse in this country with the collapse of the dollar.

One listens to all sorts of panaceas from devaluation to taking the gold reserve off dollars, but none of the proposed suggestions mean anything of significance. The Treasury must find a solution to the problem of the seeping gold and the debasing within the framework of the American economy without increasing unemployment.

This is no child's game. It takes absolute expert knowledge and enormous imagination. There are in the United States, men whose business is gold, who watch every fluctuation in price, in quantity, in the movement of gold, who can tell instantly where every pound of gold is situated, who watch every operation in this field.

Douglas Dillon knows where these men are, who they are, what they do. Because of his experience, he undoubtedly knows the British, Dutch and South African operators as well as the Americans. To my knowledge, at least one of the largest American gold operators and an expert in the field is a friend and neighbor of his in New Jersey. It is such practical men who ought to be called in to consider a solution of this problem — and immediately.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There is a certain satisfaction in breaking records. As long as we're going to be uncomfortable anyway, this might as well be the coldest cold, the snowiest snow of all time. We aren't much colder at -28 than at -20; we can get just as stuck in 10 inches of snow as in 20.

And for some obscure reason, we feel as if we were suffering to some purpose when we break an existing record. And everybody has a lot of fun comparing memories of other winters. Although I must say such preoccupation with records seems confined to adults.

The children were out yesterday — even when they didn't have to be, floundering through snowdrifts, making their own tracks through the unbroken snow along the narrowing creek, while the wind whistled and the blowing snow made ice crystals and adults shivered, even inside looking out.

And I really don't remember how cold I was in the winters of my childhood; only the hobsbelds on North Fifth St., horse and cutter we once took from Henryville to the old Pocono People's College, the bonfires by Big Bend, when we skated.

It's only when the blood thins and the muscles stop rejoicing in their own activity that we take to haunting thermometers, scanning weather reports, comparing records: to justify our complaints, perhaps, and bolster our misery.

Well, this is once when we were just as cold as we thought we were — and there's some faint comfort in that.

Paris Fashions Seem Likely To Follow American

By NADEANE WALKER

Paris (AP) Short skirts and un-nipped waistlines seem to be in prospect as eager American and foreign buyers wait for the curtain to go up on Paris 1961 spring fashion shows Monday.

Early openers are Jacques Esterel and Jacques Griffe, with Patou and Cardin to show later in the day.

Most of the anticipation is centered, as usual, on Dior's opening Thursday morning. But this time the excitement is even more feverish, for Marc Bohar will be showing his debut collection for Dior. On this show hangs his fate and perhaps that of Yves Saint-Laurent, who is reported to want his designing job back, now that he is out of the army.

Between opening day and Dior day on Thursday, these other top houses will reveal their newest creations: Tuesday, Balmain. Gorma, Lanvin Castillo and Nina Ricci; Wednesday, Heim, Laroche and Matla. Madame Chanel has not yet sent out invitations for her show, which will presumably be during the week.

The mannequins this year are the most international lot Paris has ever assembled for a single season. They range from a Berber girl from North Africa, who was hired by Esterel, to Mexican heiress Sylvia Casablanca at Lanvin-Castillo. Somebody even has a gypsy, and there are at least half a dozen American girls in the top houses, starting with Nancy Field of New York at Dior's.

Davis Class To Share Tour Of Italy

Highlights of their trip to Europe last summer will be presented in words and pictures at the meeting of Mrs. Fred Davis' Sunday School class of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Tuesday night by Ruth Brown and Bobby Westbrook of The Daily Record.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Allen Sterner, Berwick Heights, at 8 p.m. and members may bring guests.

Wooddale WSCS Meets At Adams Home

Wooddale — Mrs. Chester Adams was hostess to the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Wooddale Union Church at their January meeting conducted by Mrs. Chester Van Vliet. Mrs. Adams and Mrs. William Halterman Sr. led the devotions.

Members discussed making clothes to be sent to the In Gathering in March. It was reported that flowers had been sent to Harold Mosher in the hospital and to Russell Trunsee who is recuperating from an injured hip at home.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Van Vliet, Mrs. Halterman, Mrs. Richard Lesoinne, Mrs. Robert Decker, Mrs. Clarence Lesoinne, Mrs. Russell Trunsee, Mrs. Paul Schaller, Mrs. Albert LaBar, Mrs. Floyd Shoemaker, Mrs. Clarence Halterman, Mrs. Lowell Davis, Mrs. Elwood Heeter, Phyllis Decker and Vickie Adams. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Van Vliet with Mrs. Ernest Cramer as co-hostess.

Jr. was born to Donald and Lucille Heater of Canadensis on Jan. 17 at the General Hospital. He weighed 6 pounds 13 ounces. They have a daughter, Gayle, one year old.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Ketz and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heater, both of Canadensis.

Linda Beth Kinsley — Their first child, a daughter, was born to Mr. and Mrs. James David Kinsley of Pocono Summit on Jan. 18 at the General Hospital. She weighed 7 pounds 6 ounces and has been named Linda Beth.

Girl Scout Troop Visits Co-op Dairy

Brooksideville — Girl Scout Troop 16 recently visited the Monroe County Co-op Dairy at Brooksideville. They saw the milk coming in from the farm, and followed it as it was processed, homogenized and pasteurized and packaged. After enjoying generous samples of chocolate milk or orange juice, the girls proceeded to the laboratory where a technician explained the work done there.

Mrs. Albert Sauer, Mrs. William Horst and Mrs. Edward Horn Jr. are leaders of the troop.

Handcraft — in the form of copper enameled pins was the next project of this troop. Mrs. Roy Schreck, experienced in copper enameling, demonstrated the ofiling, powdering, and vinegar-rinsing necessary in the successful baked jewelry.

"To help other people" is also part of Troop 16's program, and 28 baby-diapers were completed and given to the Salvation Army for distribution.

A delayed Christmas party, just held, showed the ingenuity of these Girl Scouts in the gift-made gifts which they exchanged.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"the friendly store"

A.B. Wyckoff

STROUDSBURG, PA.

For my money, one of the bravest of women is Mrs. Jane Bocken of Gloucester, Mass. Despite the fact that storms are probably not an unknown quantity in the life of anyone living in one of the country's foremost seaport cities, I think Mrs. Bocken displayed enviable courage in leaving New York and heading into the Poconos to visit our Wyckoff store during a blizzard. As a matter of fact, she was one of the very few people who ventured into our store Friday morning, and we were delighted to have her as a guest.

A pleasant woman with bright blue eyes and long graying hair tucked up beneath a wisp of feathers, Jane Bocken has a very obvious interest in people . . . which is one reason why she has made a successful career of merchandising. She also likes places . . . the farther away the better, she admits . . . and things. And, as buyer of notions, stationery, cards, gifts, housewares, lamps and silver, candy and yarns for the William G. Brown Company, she is naturally surrounded by vast numbers and varieties of them.

"How did you hear about Wyckoff's?" I asked, as she sat across from my desk Friday morning.

"Through the Lloyd Jones group," she said. "We are a member, and so are you. In a way our stores have a great deal of similarity. You are a friendly store . . . so are we. You are a family store, and so are we. And you cover just about the same area as we, except that your three floors are spread over five floors in our building." One thing the William G. Brown Company has that Wyckoff's does not is a food market. However, we do have a few features which rather surprised our guest—our Sears departments, including the Farm Store, our coffee roasting plant, and our Travel Bureau.

The Brown store is 76 years old . . . a decade younger than Wyckoff's, and is in its third generation of family management. "Is there a fourth generation coming along, as is the case here?" I wanted to know, and Mrs. Bocken nodded emphatically. "Yes indeed. William G. Brown III is our vice president now and he has five daughters and one son, William IV; his brother Robert, also a company executive, has four children—three boys and a girl." I compared these statistics with the statistics of our Wyckoff family, and we concluded that a family store is really a wonderful thing. Long association builds up a mutual interest and confidence between customer and management. It also builds up a fine spirit of understanding and good will between employee and executive . . . a core for the dedicated service that merchants and employees must give the customer if a store is to grow stronger and more important through the years.

Mrs. Bocken is a fiercely loyal employee, not only showing an intense pride in her company's policies, but in the ability of her co-workers. Brown's, she told me, has a daily radio program such as ours, and once had a newspaper column similar to our own, which she hopes may someday be revived. At the present time, the company has approximately 100 employees, and sales stack up very neatly alongside ours. The Gloucester merchant, she points out, is at a certain disadvantage, however, for there are numerous accessible, highly concentrated shopping areas nearby to tempt customers away from the city's business center. This also has something in its favor . . . it serves to spur the Gloucester buyer into greater efforts to give customers the very finest for the very least, in order to keep trade localized.

Wife of a government employee and mother of one daughter who is in turn the mother of four children, Mrs. Bocken admits she would devote her life to travel if she could afford to do so. This was another point upon which we were in agreement. However, since she cannot do this, she is content to visit the big cities (just recently New York and Atlantic City) to buy for her customers. Gifts and stationery interest her particularly, and sometimes she finds it difficult to keep within her budget as she surveys all the interesting, exciting merchandise from all over the world. "A buyer must always remember though that she isn't selecting for herself, but for her customers," she comments, and oh, how many times I've heard this! Once this difficult lesson is mastered, a store has a valuable employee and the customers have a splendid store . . . whether it's Wyckoff's in Stroudsburg, Macy's in New York, or Brown's in Gloucester. Good merchandising simmers down to the same few principles and ethics everywhere —and the same pleasant people!

Buckeyes Extend Streak At Minnesota's Expense

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ohio State's Buckeyes, given a mighty assist by Purdue and a lucky kick some think is the equal of Jerry Lucas, are serenely equal another week of college basketball that in general chopped members of the national elite down to more mortal size.

While the Associated Press' top 10 as a whole was fashioning a shocking 6-5 won-lost record, the Bucks from Columbus spoiled some more special defense plans and rolled their nation-leading winning streak to 18.

Minnesota, ordered to ball-control play by Coach John Kundt, became the Buckeyes' 13th victim this season Saturday night, 75-56. The strong, sharpshooting Ohio State club needed only 5 minutes to solve the Kundt strategy.

Early Drought
Held without a field goal for 4½ minutes while Minnesota built an 8-1 lead, Ohio State found the answer for an eight-point burst, capped by Lucas' three-point play. Then, with All-America Lucas scoring 22 points and all the other starters hitting double figures, the Buckeyes moved on to their third straight Big Ten Conference victory.

Second-ranked St. Bonaventure (14-1), playing its last game in 10 days during the continuing mid-term exam period at most colleges, crushed Canisius 96-76 as Tom Stith (28) and soph ace Freddie Crawford (20) combined for 48 points. It was the 14th victory in 15 starts for the Bonnies, whose only loss was a two-point decision to Ohio State in the New York Holiday Festival last month.

Three others of the top 10, third-ranked Bradley, eighth-ranked Duke and ninth-rated St. Johns, were idle during the week. Sixth-ranked North Carolina won twice in midweek before taking a 13-day break for exams.

Roll Reshuffling
What happened to the rest of the elite hasn't happened all at once to a group of national problems for many a week. It'll probably mean considerable reshuffling when the 36 voting experts mark their new ballots.

Biggest to fall was fourth-ranked Iowa, considered top challenger to Ohio State in the Big Ten, which carried a 10-game winning streak and a 12-1 record into Saturday's game at Purdue. The Boilermakers, who play Ohio State at Columbus next Saturday, held the Hawkeyes to 14 points in the first half and whipped to a 47-41 triumph as 6-foot-6 Terry Dischinger, the big man in Lucas' Big Ten shadow, scored 19 points.

Seventh-ranked De Paul, the only unbeaten team in basketball a week ago, had double trouble—losing to Notre Dame and Western Michigan on the road in Tuesday and Thursday games. And fifth-ranked Louisville dropped its second straight, at Xavier of Ohio, before bouncing back for a 63-50 decision over Dayton in Saturday's nationally televised game.

To make the woe of top 10 record complete, 10th-ranked Kansas State lost its 10-game winning streak, losing 75-66 to Kansas Friday in its only start of the week.

Louisville (14-2) held Dayton scoreless during a seven-minute stretch in the second half to break its losing string. John Turner was held to 14 points, eight under his season average, but Bud Olsen filled in with 13 points and Fred Sawyer added 10.

Final: 68-51 Mounties Lose To Heydt's 50

BILL HEYDT made sure that his Palmerton High team stayed in a tie for first place in the Lehigh Valley League Saturday night.

The 6-3 sophomore dumped in 50 points to lead the Indians to a 68-51 win over Stroud Union at Stroudsburg and cracked the league single game scoring record.

The old mark was 49 points, set by Rich (Tiny) Saylor of Cataqua last year. Bob Mikly, former Palmerton star, held the record of 48 points against Cataqua until the 6-8 Saylor shattered it. Mikly is now playing with the University of Pennsylvania.

Palmerton upped its loop mark to 5-1, while Slaton kept pace with the Indians by bombing Whitehall 86-44. Slaton also has a 5-1 record.

Heydt collected his record with quarter scores of 7, 16, 10 and 17.

He scored 17 of the Indians' 22 last period points.

Palmerton also won the junior varsity game 48-30, handing the young Mounties their eighth loss in 10 games.

The JV game was held up for 10 minutes in the final quarter when a short circuit knocked out the gymnasium lights.

Haddix Inks Buc Contract

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates said Sunday southpaw pitcher Harvey Haddix has returned a signed contract for the coming season.

Haddix, 35, appeared in 29 games last season and finished with an 11-10 record and a 3.98 earned run average.

The little lefthander also won two World Series games, one as a starter, the other in relief.

Haddix beat Milwaukee four times last year and San Francisco three times, two of the Pirates' close rivals in the pennant race.

Meanwhile, the Pirates have announced 18 pitchers and four catchers are due to arrive at the Fort Myers, Fla., spring training camp on Feb. 21.

Hands Report
Sixteen of the club's most promising farm club players also will report.

Full scale training, with the entire club on hand, gets under way Feb. 26.

Pirate third baseman Don Hoak has been awarded the Hovey J. Boyle Memorial Award as the athlete who contributed most in Pittsburgh sports in 1960.

The Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writer's Association gives the award in memory of the late sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Poconos Can Get On Athletic Map

EAST STROUDSBURG STATE College gets a chance today to put the Poconos on the big time athletic map.

The school's physical education faculty meets to decide if the New York Titans, a professional football team, will be allowed to use the college facilities for its pre-season training camp.

The yes or no answer hinges on the limited number of practice areas at East Stroudsburg and the conditions the fields might be left in, after the pros windup their six-week period.

Constant use of one of the fields over the six-week period might damage the grass and sod but there are two suitable practice fields at Normal Hill and if the use of the field is rotated, there would be little damage to the sod.

Daily maintenance of the fields, rolling and sprinkling, would cut to a minimum the damage to the fields. And the Titans spend most of their practice time after the first two weeks of practice in sweat suits and tennis shoes.

The club has also promised to financially reimburse the school for any damage done to the fields.

And since the school is getting three additional fields next year, the two other fields will get a rest then.

Field Use May Not Clinch Deal

Approval of the use of the fields will not assure the Titans' appearance. The club is also considering a Bear Mountain (N.Y.) site.

But the Poconos have been a long time favorite of Titan general manager Steve Sebo, and he is strongly interested in setting up summer shop here.

The 27 Pocono golf courses will also lure Titan president Harry Wismer, an avid golfer.

So if the field problem can be worked out, it appears that East Stroudsburg would have the edge on Bear Mountain.

The Titans would bring financial and publicity benefits to the Poconos. A five-man press staff covers the camp daily for the New York City papers and press representatives from other league cities make at least one visit to the training camps.

While the Titans themselves would give the area a financial lift, the biggest boost would be in the influx of visitors to watch the Titans.

Players Are Kept In Check

There is little chance that the Titans would give the college a bad name. The club has a nightly bed check and a $50 fine for any player missing it.

Most pro clubs stick with one training camp for a long time, unless as in the Titans' case, the camp is not adequate or easy to reach. The Titans dropped their New Hampshire University camp because of the travel expense involved in getting players there.

The Washington Redskins have trained at Ocell-dental College, in California for almost 20-years and the Baltimore Colts have been at Western Maryland college since the team has been in the league.

Almost every team in the National or American Football League uses college facilities for their training camps and a little wear and tear on an athletic field should not keep East Stroudsburg State off the list.

Pocono Bow Group Meets

THE Pocono Archery Assn., a member of the new Inter-County Conference, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 in the Towne Room of the Town Tavern.

The new conference will have six teams. Bowmans-town, Blue Ridge, Isaac Walton, Slaton, West Penn and Pocono, instead of the four clubs in the Tri-County Conference.

The officers for the Pocono group are Paul Daily, president; Eugene Hipler, vice president; Gwen Marsh, recording secretary; Kenneth Stine, treasurer and Pauline Stine, corresponding secretary.

Rosburg Captures Crosby With 282

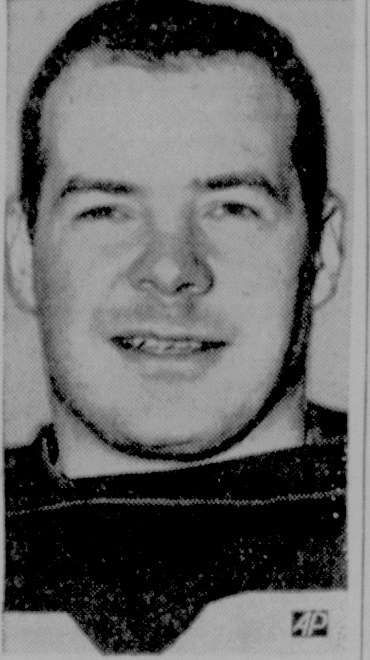

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—California's Bobby Rosburg, the 1959 FA champion, calmly canned a 14-foot birdie putt on the final hole Sunday to capture the $5,300 first prize in Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament. Rosburg had a 72-hole score of 282.

As the ball dropped, the 34-year-old ex-Stanford golfer chortled his putt onto the green. The putt gave Rosburg an even-par 72 for Sunday after he started seven strokes off the pace.

Still the issue wasn't decided until Bill Collins of Baltimore came in nearly a half hour later and three-putted from about the same 14 feet.

Biggest to fall was fourth-ranked Iowa, considered top challenger to Ohio State in the Big Ten, which carried a 10-game

3 Records Fall In L. A. Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sprinter Wilma Rudolph, shot putter Parry O'Brien and broad jumper Ralph Boston smashed American indoor records Saturday night.

The three U.S. Olympic game stars performed at the second annual Los Angeles Indoor Invitational Track and Field Meet before a turnout crowd of 13,622 in the Sports Arena.

The willowy Miss Rudolph, 20, who won three gold medals last summer at Rome, ran the women's indoor 60-yard dash in 6.9 seconds. This beat the previous mark, 7.2, set March 21, 1954, by Dolores Dwyer in New York.

His Mark
O'Brien, 28, ex-shot-put king who has been threatening to retire from track, broke his own indoor record with a mighty heave of 63 feet, 1½ inches. His former mark was 62½, set Feb. 20, 1960, in New York.

Boston, holder of the world and Olympic broad jump records, leaped 25 feet, 10 inches. This bettered by one-half inch the indoor mark set last Feb. 20 in New York by Ed Robinson of the Army. Boston, like Miss Rudolph, is from Tennessee A&I State.

Dear Abby

First Come, First Seated

Dear Abby: Isn't it proper for men to offer their seats on a bus to women any more? I ride to work on a bus every day and I have seen elderly and even pregnant women stand while men just sit there. Occasionally I will see a gentleman offer a woman his seat, but you should see the dirty looks he gets from the men who are sitting. Are gentlemen becoming extinct in our civilization? LADY BUS RIDER Dear Abby: Some of the women who ride buses are in better shape than some of the men. Naturally, an elderly or pregnant woman shouldn't be made to stand any more than a feeble or handicapped man. But healthy, able-bodied women, who compete with men for jobs, shouldn't expect a husband of Sir Walter Raleighs.

One was born, we'd agree on a name we both liked, take the baby to church and have it baptized with that name. But as soon as we'd get home my husband would start calling it something else. Our Christopher he calls "Max", Marie Ann is "Cookie", Francis is "Butch" and Antonio is "Charlie." I get so mad I could throw him out. What can I do? ONLY A WIFE Dear Abby: What's in a name? I love a man who calls me "Popo." (He's my husband.)

You reason, therefore, come up with surprisingly accurate answers when others do not know you are considering the subject. Don't make refined, humanitarian. You like doing things for people. Do not feel badly if efforts are not appreciated or if "unhatched" life is like that. But you will have wonderful compensation for your earnest endeavor if it not one way, brother. Protect health from too heavy demands, overtaxing. Rhythmic: John Hancock, Amer. Revolutionist; Stendahl, painter, statesman, soldier and father of the analytic novel.

Iron, Steel Expenditures

NEW YORK (AP) — Iron and steel company expenditures for new equipment and construction this year will drop to $1.2 billion from $1.48 billion in 1960, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported. The institute noted that last year's figure was a gain of $543 million over 1959 and the second highest on record, falling $243 million short of the 1957 peak. Expenditures as planned in 1961 would bring the total outlay in the 16 years since World War II to about $15 billion.

Named LBI Inc. Chairman

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph T. Heimsfeld, executive vice president of Schenley Industries, Inc., was elected chairman of the board of Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc., at the organization's annual meeting. He succeeds Joseph A. Englehardt, president of Glenmore Distillers Co. Thomas J. Donovan was re-elected president of LBI, research and public relations organization for the distilled spirits industry.

Work Advocated

HARRISBURG (AP) — More work and less socializing by members of the General Assembly could shave 20 days from the average session and save a half million dollars, House Speaker H. G. Andrews said.

'Quake Research

TOKYO (AP) — Japan will set up an earthquake research institute next year to train international scientists in seismology.

The Daily Investor

Forced To Sell Stock

By William A. Doyle
Q. I own some Ford Motor Ltd. (Ford of England) stock. As you know, Ford Motor Co. here in the U.S. is trying to buy all the Ford of England stock. Must I sell my Ford of England shares?

A. Most likely, yes. Ford Motor has offered to buy all the publicly held "ordinary" (common) shares of Ford of England, at $20.375 a share.

When Ford Motor made the offer late last year, it already owned 54.6 percent of the Ford of England ordinary shares. The U.S. company is bidding for 100 percent ownership of the English company.

It was recently announced that more than 90 percent of the stockholders of Ford of England have accepted the offer.

English law (section 209 of "The Companies Act of 1948," to be exact) comes into play here. It provides that when either 75 percent of the stockholders or 90 percent of the total value of the shares have accepted an offer such as this, the remaining share holders can be forced to sell.

Ford Motor has announced that it intends to apply this provision of English law. So, it seems that you will have to sell your shares to the U.S. company.

Q. Some companies sometimes issue rights, entitling their shareholders to buy additional stock in the company. Is it always advisable to do this? Would it not be more advantageous, sometimes, to sell the rights, wait until the market price of the stock dips and buy more at that time?

A. Yes, it might be more advantageous to sell the rights and buy the stock later—sometimes. You would, of course, be trying to outguess the market, as to the future price performance of the stock. If you can do it, more power to you and congratulations. If you can't, you may wind up being sorry.

There's a very simple reason why rights are usually valuable. When a company makes a rights offering to stockholders, it normally gives the shareholders the opportunity to buy securities at a price below the current market value. That makes the right issued to each share of stock worth money.

It's up to you whether you want to "exercise" your rights by buying additional stock or whether you want to sell your rights.

But, do one or the other of these things. Don't neglect your rights and let them expire. When rights expire they become worthless.

Q. I thought I knew most of the weird language used in Wall Street. But here's one that stumps me. What is the meaning of "mark to the market"? Can you give a few examples of how this operates?

A. Nope, I can't. I can't even give you its meaning—because I never heard it before. Every now and then somebody will dream up a new phrase. This may be somebody's pet term. But, so far as I can find out, it isn't in general use.

We will all be better off when Wall Street uses simple, everyday language. Let's not add to the confusion by throwing in new, wild phrases.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Per Capita Donations Reach $214

ELDER MILTON T. Reiber, pastor of the local Seventh-day Adventist Church released his year-end report at a recent business meeting of the congregation.

The pastor said a total of $31,021.41 was received in tithe and offerings for the year 1960. This sets the per capita for the 145 members at $213.94.

Not included in the above figure is $3,933.05 which was contributed by friends, neighbors and business people of the community for the support of the Adventist worldwide medical, educational, welfare and missions work through the annual appeal.

Members of the congregation gave $1,031.11 to local welfare agencies outside the church.

Health and Welfare services rendered by the church to area needy included 1,730 articles of clothing, 172 food orders, and spiritual and physical aid to 1,090 persons with a total cash value of $6,235.74.

Army Officer From Easton Fatally Hurt

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP)—Army Captain Robert B. Flowers, 46, of Easton, Pa., was fatally injured Saturday in the crash of his car and a tractor-trailer on icy U. S. 40 near Claysville.

State police said Flowers' car skidded out of control and swerved into the path of the oncoming truck. Flowers was driving from Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio, to Fort Lee, Va., at the time.

Flowers was rushed to Washington Hospital first and then transferred to Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh where he died about four hours after the crash.

The truck driver escaped injury.

DeSantos Get Letter From President, Wife

POCONO SUMMIT — Mr. and Mrs. John DeSanto have received a letter of acknowledgment from President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy expressing appreciation for courtesies extended by the local couple in connection with the birth of a son to the Senator and Mrs. Kennedy last November.

The DeSantos sent the Kennedy's a religious medal for the new baby and their congratulations and best wishes on his arrival.
